DUDLEY SUES

His Appearance as an Enemy of Enterprise.

He Objects to "The Evening World's" Graphic Style.

He Thinks "The Evening World" is Awful Gheeky in Asking an Interview.

Col. W. W. Dudley, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, has shown himself to be an enemy to enterprise, and instead of protecting, is engaged in an attack on one of New York's liveliest of "infant industries," THE EVENING WORLD.

Yesterday it published a fac simile of the "floater" purchase letter which Dudley is alleged to have sent to the several chairmen of "e ninety-two Republican County Committees of Indiana. The issue of the edition the Champton Bluffer. EVENING WORLD containing it was of THE EVENING WORLD containing it was followed shortly by the service of a summons in an action for libel upon the publisher, commenced by Dudley through his attorney. Col. George Bliss.

Col. Dudley claims that his reputation, which his political enemies in Indiana claim to be none of the best since his participation with Star Route Stephen W. Dorsey in the "soap" campaign of 1880, has been damaged by THE EVENING WORLD's publication of this letter to the extent of $25,000.

Strangely enough, the Colonel does not explain wherein the letter complained of is a misrepresentation and a forgery which he has claimed, and the public is just as much in the dark, so far as Mr. Dudley is concerned, as to the contents of the letter which the Treasurer of the Republican National Committee in effect acknowledged sending, as ever.

committee in effect acknowledged sending, as ever.

The action for libel is looked upon as a bluff to set Col. Dudley right with the respectable Republicans of Indiana who were disgusted with this apparent attempt to purchase the electoral vote of that State.

A member of the legal profession says:

"If Col. Dudley is in the right in this matter, why did he not institute criminal proceedings for criminal libel. Iustead he has commenced a civil proceeding and the issues in the action need not be joined until long after Election Dav.

"That eventful day having passed there is anothing to hinder Col. Dudley from discontinuing his action, and the public will be mone the wiser as to his explanation.

"Possibly his reason for not instituting a triminal proceeding may be found in the fact that if he is insincere and should desire to refrain from the prosecution after election has night find hunself made the defendant.

to refrain from the prosecution after election he might find himself made the defendant in an action for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution." Sensitor Matt Quay, the Chairman of the Bernator Matt Quay, the Committee is said to Malicious prosecution."

Benator Matt Quay, the Chairman of the Republican Executive Committee, is said to be angry with Dudley for having commenced the action against The World, which, it is alleged, was begun without the advice of the Pennsylvania champion of pure elections.

This morning a reporter for The Evening World server thouse.

Word was returned that the Colonel was just coming down. But it was a full naif hour before he really did descend to the lobby, arm in arm with another veteran.

Meantime the reporter had written the questions which he intended to ask Col. Ducley, and advancing on that hero of many (Presidential) campaigns he opened fire:

"Col. Ducley, the Evening World presents its compliments and, wishes to ask if you will state in what manner The World has libelled you."

Col. Ducley's iron visage was forbidding and his tone not cheerful as he retorted:

"I won't say anything. All I've got to say is that I think it shows an awful check on the part of The Evening World to send a man to me after I have sued it."

say is that I think it shows an awful check on the part of The Evening Womd to send a man to me after I have sued it "
"Well, we like to be informed and to inform the public," went on the imperturbable reporter. "We would like to know what inaccuracies there were in the published version of your alleged letter?"
"See my attorney. I will sav nothing to you," said the Colonel, all the while retreating with his escort.

"We will publish the letter that you did write if you will give us a copy," said the reporter, as the doughty campaigner moved away.

The reporter told Col, Dudley that in order that no mistakes in question nor answer might occur he had written the questions The EVENING WORLD wanted to ask, and asked that he peruse them and answer at his leisure, handing a copy of the questions to him.

But Col. Dudley declared that he would not answer any questions at all and went away declining to say another word.

These are the questions THE EVENING WORLD wished to ask and which the reporter submitted to Col. Dudley:

1. Is your action for $25,000 damages for libel, brought against This World, baned on the alleged letter by you as originally published, or on the alleged fac simile as printed on the front page of This Evening World of yesterday?

2. When will the complaint in your suit be served?

A Will you kindly furnish THE EVENING WORLD for publication with a copy of the letter which you did write to the chairmen of the Indiana County

Committees?

4. Will you furnish THE EVENING WORLD with your corrections of the aliese 1 has simile of the latter as published yeaterday?

5. Now that you have instituted an action for libel against The World, will you unlosed yourself to the people through THE EVENING WORLD and state wherein you have been libelled by The World in either of its editions?

6. The World has left a blank space in its columns which it invites you to occupy with an explanation of your alteged correspondence. Will you give that explanation to the public through THE EVENING WORLD?

Col. Geograp Blies was not to ble office in

Col. George Bliss was not in his office in the Guernsey Building when an Evenino World reporter called, but his partner, Mr. William T. Schley, was. He said that Mr. Bliss had not come downtown on account of the rain. He could give no information concerning the suit except that it had been brought and that he had the summons ready to serve. The summons gives The World twenty days to answer, and states, in the usual form "in default, judgment will be taken against you for the sum of $25,000."

United States District-Attorney Walker and District-Attorney Fellows were non-committal when asked to-day if they intended to take any steps in the Dudley matter.

At Democratic National Headquarters the feeling was general that Col. Dudley's suit against The World is simply a piece of bluff on his part, and since the appearance of Gen. Eb. Henderson from Indiananco is with a copy of the letter, the opinion that it is genuine has become firmly fixed.

Gen. Henderson was at headquarters this morning and said:

"Col. Dudley is very careful not to institute a suit against the Indianapolis Scatinel, Chairman Jewett or any other Indianian on the ground that this letter is a forgery.

"As to the genuineness of the letter and the signature of Col. Dudley, written with pen and ink, there is no doubt, even among his political associates in Indiana.

"If it is a forgery, as the pretends in his bluffing way, each of the Republican County Committee Chairmen in the State would come forward and make affidavit that he never received such a letter from Dudley.

'This they have not done, and Chairman Huston, of the Republican State Central Committee, indirectly admits it to be genuine, but denies Col. Dudley's authority to communicate with the committeemen."

According to the laws of Indiana Col. Dudley, if the author of that letter, is liable to arrest for attempting in this bold manner to corrupt the voters.

This is an outcome of the intense excitement over the refusal of King Charles to expel two American adventurers, Woodcock and Hendry, who have attained such complete control over the weak-minded King.

The Ministers of the Administration have all resigned and the majority of the populace sides with the offended Cabinet. Excited people throng the streets and the popular feeling will force a climax of some sort before long. There is much interest here over the state of affairs at Stuttgart.

The two Americans who have obtained such ascendancy over King Charles and have caused such a rumpus in Bavaria are the Rev. Charles B. Woodcock; a native New Yorker, whose people still reside in this city, and Donald Hendry, of St. John, N. B.,

Mr. Woodcock's people live at 168 East Fifty.first street, and include his father, Jonas G. Woodcock, a retired butcher, and two brothers—Allan, a physician, and Fraderick, a clerk.

Young Woodcock attended the University in this city, took a course and a degree at Heidelberg, in Germany, and prepared for the ministry at the Congregational Theological Seminary, in Bangor, Me.

He became pastor of a church at St. John, N. B., where he is remembered as a man very popular, socially, and where, also, he met his present companion, Hendry. He went away from St. John in 1879, and debts amounting to $1,200 were among the affairs he left behind him. His pastorate, begun in 1875, had been procured for him through the recommendation of Rev. Dr. Hepworth, of New York. Since his departure he has forwarded to St. John the money to cover all his indebtedness.

Hendry, too, was a popular fellow, a Baptist at first, but converted by Woodcock to Congregationalism. The pair spent much Hendry, too, was a popular fellow, a Baptist at first, but converted by Woodcock to Congregationalism. The pair spent much time in a fashionable bookstore, where they saw all the prettiest girls of the town, as well as the latest publications.

Woodcock lived at the Victoria Hotel, where he had elegant rooms, and where he gave evening parties which, it was sometimes whispered, were inclined to be gay. He courted society and was handsome and popular enough to get full returns.

In 1878 Dr. Hepworth visited Woodcock at St. John, and the visit made quite a boom for the young pastor, besides relieving him of a good deal of his Sunday duty.

In 1879, whispers about Woodcock's manner of life, together with the interest which he took in a defaulting New York bank teller jailed at St. John, were sufficient to lead to the occasion of his farewell sermon.

It has beenknown that he and Hendry were living at Stuttgart for some time. They left St. John together on the invitation to join Dr. Hepworth's continental touring party.

And we'll shout that he the victory has won The lowering clouds that gave promise rain this forenoon saddened the heart of every faithful Republican in town.

They feared that the wet would show its perfect impartiality and spoil the Republican demonstration this afternoon, as it tried to do that of the Democrats last Saturday.

Final arrangements for the parade were completed this morning and last instructions issued to the marshals of the various organizations.

The line of march is from William street, up Wall to Broadway, to Waverly place, through to Fifth avenue, up Fifth avenue and past the reviewing stands in Madison Squars. Forty thousand men will surely be in line, rain or shine, was the Republican estimate yesterday afternoon.

There was plenty of bunting displayed this morning. Many business houses on lower Broadway were handsomely decorated in honor of the Republican turn-out, as well as private dwellings on Fifth avenue and along the line of march.

It was feared a few days ago that the Republicans would have great difficulty in getting any music with which to enliven their long march, as the wily Democrats had long since engaged every band of any account in Gotham.

However, there was no lack of music this afternoon, although the majority of the bands which the Republicans hired came from out of town. bands which the Republicans hired came from out of town.

Orders were given that when passing the New York hotel where Mrs. James G. Blaine, ir., lies seriously ill, the music should cease entirely, and the drums beat only very softly to aid the paraders in keeping time.

Some of the other organizations in line are the Veterans of 1840, Bankers and Brokers' Harrison and Morton Club, Consolidated Exchange Club, Produce and Maritime Exchange Club, Custom-House brokers, Cotton and Coffee Exchange Club, the Bowling Green Harrison and Morton Club, the coal traders, Lawyers' Club, insurance men, jewellews, Harrison and Morton Club, Hide and Leather Club, boot and shoe trade, hardware and metal trades, west side merchants, carpet trades, railway and stoamship men, Dry Goods Harrison and Morton Club, umbrella trades, wholesale milliners, gas fixtures employes,

They made a fine and imposing appearance. A quad of mounted police led, followed by the Marshal and his aides on horseback. In point of numbers however, they did not begin to compare with the start of the Democratic paraders in much the same weather last Saturday.

The majority of them carried umbrellas, red, white and blue and black in color.

They also wore rubbers and rubber coats, and were protected as much as possible from the inclemency of the weather.

At 1.45 Levi P. Morton walked quietly and almost unobserved upon the reviewing stand.

Among those there were Warner Miller, H. O. Armour, Col. Cruger, H. C. Perley, Cornelius Flynn, Marvelle W. Cooper, Frank Schroeder, Gen. John C. Fremont, Mgr. Preston, Gen. Horace Porter, Rev. Dr. Kohler and Jesses Seligman.

Rumors of eleventh-hour Republican tricks were augmented to-day by a telegram to Chairman Brice, of the Democratic National Committee, from a prominent Democrat, of Wichita, Kan., in which he says: "Am reliably informed that Cleveland's death will be announced by Repub-lican papers on the morning of election.

Grand Marshal Landers and the Business Men's Cleveland and Thurman Conference are preparing for the biggest and most imposing demonstration of the campaign to night.

Supt. Murray has issued orders that no other parades shall be permitted between Second and Eighth avenues this evening, and the Republicans have agreed to clear the field completely to their opponents after 6 o'clock. The Conference is still receiving applica

Davenport Said to Have Com-

The Preference of the Voter Marked

What is thought to be an attempt to buy

According to their information, he has taken advantage of his position to provide the Republican campaign managers with a particularly convenient directory of voters.

For a long time he has had 200 girls employed making type-written copies of the names of reg stered voters in the 856 election districts of this city.

It is alleged that Davenport had had his trusted agents make a careful canvass in each of the election districts, and the result is that these small type-written sheets have been bound together for pocket use by the Republican district workers.

Opposite the name of each voter appears the letter C. for Cleveland, H. for Harrison, P. for Prohibnion or N. K., not known.

Every alternate N. K. is said also to be noted with an H., which is believed to indicate that the Republicans hope to purchase half of the voters whose preference is unknown by them.

The recurrence of the "N. K." and "H." notation is said to be most frequent in the downtown districts, where the Italians and Russian, Polish and Hungarian Hebrews are most numerous.

It is thought at Democratic Headquarters that this indicated a belief that money can be used to better advantage in these districts than elsewhere.

agent from New York sround town yester seiling an instrument for cutting women's dresses. The article needed a good deal of explanation. He entered the house of a fair Iriahwoman, who at the time was kneading bread. After the agent had recited a long explanation she asked him to repeat it. He called her stupid, and she at once began thrashing him with dough. She pounded his head and shoulders with dough, then caugh thin under the coat tails with her doughy hands and threw him out of doors.

Edward Finn, aged twenty-three years, was aghting drink in front of his residence, at 24 Clinton street, and was amusing himself by breaking the windows. Henry Roehm, of 144 Lewis street, tried to stop him. Finn stabbed Roehm in the breast and was held at Essex Market to-day to await the result of Roehm's injuries.
